

VoIP: SIMPLE AFFORDABLE NECESSARY

Let technology level the playing field between you and the Global 1000 with integrated voice and data systems from Equivoice, a Cisco Premier Certified Partner.

Is your communications network keeping up with the competition?

You can't do business if you can't communicate, and in the fast-paced global marketplace, Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP) is rapidly becoming the gold standard of effective communications networks.

By offering end-to-end Cisco solutions, Equivoice will streamline your communications network, helping you cut costs and making you more competitive in the global marketplace.

"We analyze your needs and install the system that best serves your business," said Marcus McEwen, President of Equivoice. "We can give you the same technology as the Global 1000 at an affordable price. There's no longer any reason for a business to be handicapped by inferior technology."

You'll cut costs by converging your voice and data hardware. You'll also benefit from increased productivity and efficiency, while expanding your global communications capabilities.

Be more competitive, around the world or across town

Globalization demands quick responses and instant mobility. Equivoice provides affordable communications solutions that accommodate portability and adaptation. Equivoice offers a variety of VoIP solutions that can enhance your communications capabilities without increasing IT staffing, budgets or support costs.

With VoIP solutions from Equivoice, you'll have the ability to quickly deploy remote offices, giving employees all of the tools their co-workers have at headquarters. Eliminate down time in event of a disaster by instantly establishing new offices wherever your employees relocate. Give employees more flexibility through telecommuting and work-from-home options.

Equivoice's VoIP solutions aren't just about telephony and the Internet. Collaborative and video software will enable you to communicate on a more personal level with employees and clients, while eliminating travel time and costs.

Even mundane tasks like managing email and voicemail can be streamlined, allowing you to focus on your core business.

Contact Equivoice to schedule an analysis of your business communications needs, and find out how a customized, affordable communications network can boost productivity as well as your bottom line.
